Dear Madam:

While on our past two week's tour through Canada and Ohio, I met Hank Rigney, a baseball promoter, who suggested that I write to you concerning a game, or a double header, with the Eagles Base Ball Club.

It so happens that we do not have an open date in our schedule until the fifteenth through the twenty-third of August. We would like very much to play your team in your city, or in New York, if it can be arranged. I am sure that the Louisville, Kentucky Tigers will draw a large crowd.

In 1938 I brought Henry Moore to New York with the Birmingham Barons to play in the East-West Game. He told me if I ever had an outstanding team to contact you.

Recently I received a letter from Dr. Jackson of Nashville, Tennessee inviting us to become a member of the Southern League, but I am being booked in the East and Canada, so I could not accept his invitation. (I am really interested in becoming a member of the United States League next year.)

Tom Wilson of Nashville, Tennessee has also mentioned you to me.

If you, or your manager, find it impossible to accept my dates, you may be able to recommend us to the Yankees, or any members of your association who may be idle at that time.

I would appreciate a letter stating terms of non-members of your league in exhibition games.
